

Information about the Whole-Body Scan Benefit

1. What is a whole-body scan?

Whole-body scans are imaging tests that take pictures of your entire body. Some people believe that, in certain circumstances, body scans can help find cancer and other diseases early on. The benefits versus the risks of a whole-body scan is an individual decision in consultation with an appropriate health care provider.

2. Who is covered?

This benefit is available for the subscriber and dependent spouse and/or eligible domestic partner.

3. What does the plan pay?

LAPRA's Anthem Blue Cross PPO plan will pay up to the benefit maximum of $500 every other calendar year, for in-network or out-of-network providers. Any amounts over the $500 benefit maximum, will be the member's responsibility.

If you see a non-network provider, they may balance bill you for any amounts that exceed Anthem's maximum allowed amount. Accordingly, you may be responsible for paying the difference between the maximum allowed amount and the amount the non-participating provider charges. This amount can be significant. Choosing a participating provider will likely result in lower out of pocket costs to you.

4. Where can I get a body scan?

The following page will provide you with a list of imaging centers that currently have an Anthem Blue Cross of CA PPO plan contract.

Whole-Body Scan Imaging Centers In Anthem Blue Cross PPO Network

While Anthem makes efforts to ensure that their lists of providers are up to date and accurate, providers do leave their networks from time to time. It is recommended that you contact the provider to confirm that they are in the Anthem Blue Cross PPO network and that the desired service is covered.

The information provided in this release is intended to be general in nature and not a recommendation or endorsement by LAPRA or Anthem of any service or specific provider. Any health questions should be addressed to an appropriate health care professional.
